

“You Still Have Rice, But Soon No Way to Cook It.” One of Many Dilemmas for our New Hope Mission Society Partners Facing Devastating Floods

The picture gives you the big picture. Dr. Abdul, his father, Pastor K.K. Alavi, and their team at Bishara have been working tirelessly to try to alleviate a small portion of the damage done by the massive flooding. It is the worst monsoon season in memory, causing untold destruction of homes but also the loss of a great many lives.

Abdul shares that “we are engaged in providing packaged water, blankets, food, clothes and medications to these people, along with government and other missions seeking to respond. The episode is persisting with tragic consequences.

Bishara itself has been spared with very little physical destruction. The Bible College continues to function with teachers and students residing on campus on higher ground.

Abdul has recently reported, however, to Dorothy Desens, President of NHMS, that while Bishara still has basic rice for food, it still faces an impending crisis. To save money the Center has relied on burning wood to cook the rice, but now dry wood is no longer available. When the current propane gas runs out, there is no more available to obtain in the area. It is hard for us to imagine facing such a dilemma.

Faith’s Church in the World ministry team and Church Council are supporting a simple invitation for anyone wishing to respond with a financial gift to direct that to our mission partner, the New Hope Mission Society. Please mark your gift for “Flood Relief.” If placed in the Sunday morning offering, it will be directed to leaders of NHMS.

“You Still Have Rice, But Soon No Way to Cook It.” One of Many Dilemmas for our New Hope Mission Society Partners Facing Devastating Floods

The picture gives you the big picture. Dr. Abdul, his father, Pastor K.K. Alavi, and their team at Bishara have been working tirelessly to try to alleviate a small portion of the damage done by the massive flooding. It is the worst monsoon season in memory, causing untold destruction of homes but also the loss of a great many lives.

Abdul shares that “we are engaged in providing packaged water, blankets, food, clothes and medications to these people, along with government and other missions seeking to respond. The episode is persisting with tragic consequences.

Bishara itself has been spared with very little physical destruction. The Bible College continues to function with teachers and students residing on campus on higher ground.

Abdul has recently reported, however, to Dorothy Desens, President of NHMS, that while Bishara still has basic rice for food, it still faces an impending crisis. To save money the Center has relied on burning wood to cook the rice, but now dry wood is no longer available. When the current propane gas runs out, there is no more available to obtain in the area. It is hard for us to imagine facing such a dilemma.

Faith’s Church in the World ministry team and Church Council are supporting a simple invitation for anyone wishing to respond with a financial gift to direct that to our mission partner, the New Hope Mission Society. Please mark your gift for “Flood Relief.” If placed in the Sunday morning offering, it will be directed to leaders of NHMS.